Lobbyists.info enhances online services

(Bethesda, Md.) Lobbyists.info, a division of Columbia Books and Information Services, is delighted to announce the addition of LobbyOpps. This new service tracks lobbying opportunities and delivers them right to your inbox. LobbyOpps compiles federal, state and local RFPs and awards and additional key business development resources to make the business of lobbying that much simpler. Included in each alert are complete project details and contact information.

Lobbyists.info subscribers can also now search the database for historical lobbying data. Lobbyists.info also tracks people who are not registered under the LDA, but are key to shaping government policy.

Lobbyists.info has been the ultimate one-stop resource for information on government relations and lobbying information since 2006, the only daily updated comprehensive resource available for government relations professionals. It includes a compliance center, which provides information on the latest rules and regulations on lobbying ethics and procedure, in addition to the searchable databases.
